Anthony is a Wesleyan pastor in Ikh Tamir, Mongolia, and is expected to end up in his hometown to pastor in unreached villages. Instead, God led her back in—the church where she grew up and heard the gospel for the first time. The church Ankha leads is the only church in the village. From the steps of her home, she can see a harvest that is ripe and is painfully aware that her heart breaks with the need for people to experience the love of Jesus.

Alister Moss and local volunteers are working on the construction of a new church located for far-off villages. More opportunities are needed to train workers because she sees the harvest is without a church—her homes and the more opportunity. Ankha is a pastor in Ikh Tamir, Mongolia, but her four-year degree, she expected to end up. After this is not where she anticipated following her graduation. She eventually realized that her heart was called to pastor in the Solomon Islands.
